Tips for the Letter Writer

1. Provide an accurate assessment of the applicant's suitability for the professional school rather than advocate for the applicant.
2. Briefly explain your relationship with the applicant: How long you have known the applicant; in what capacity you have interacted (e.g., faculty, pre-medical advisor, supervisor, etc.); and whether you are writing based on direct or indirect observations.
3. Quality is more important than letter length. Focus on the applicant rather than details about the lab, course, assignment, job or institution.
4. Only include information on grades, GPA or MCAT scores if you are providing context to help interpret them. This information is already available in the application.
5. Focus on behaviors that you have observed directly when describing applicant's suitability for professional school. Consider describing: The situation or context of the behavior, the actual behavior(s) you observed, any consequences of that behavior.
6. Admissions committees find comparison information helpful. If you make comparisons, be sure to provide context. Include information about the comparison group (e.g., students in a class you taught, students in your department, co-workers, etc.) and your rationale for the final comparison.
