ASSESSMENT

Students in the Criminal Justice program learn to explain the general nature of crime and criminality. To determine their level of knowledge, the program administers similar exam questions to students at both the freshman and senior levels. In addition, survey questions were administered to students in introductory courses and to graduating seniors. This has allowed the program to capture a snapshot of student knowledge before and after completion of the program.

IMPACT

The Criminal Justice program has found a definitive increase in knowledge among students regarding the nature of crime and criminality, helping to determine that the program is meeting its intended goals. However, because overall scores were lower than they would like, the program has focused on ways to improve student retention of learning and enhance the curriculum. Faculty will be collecting additional data to determine future efforts.
