

Going to college will help you develop skills that will prepare you for a job when you grow up. In college, you will read and learn more about math, science and art, and you can also find ways to help people. You can get ready for college now by studying hard and earning good grades in your classes.

Write or draw what you want to be when you grow up and share out loud with your class or a partner.